Introduction

An opening message from the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner.

Message from the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner

We are pleased to present the Victorian Public Sector Commission's (VPSC) Accessibility Action Plan 2024 to 2027.

We are committed to building a more inclusive Victoria that upholds the rights of people with a disability.

This plan drives our work to make the VPSC an employer that is genuinely accessible and inclusive, as part of a trusted and representative public sector workforce that delivers for all Victorians.

It sets our course to promoting universal access through five priority areas that reflect our organisation's size, structure, and resources, as well as how we will evaluate and report on progress over the coming years.

It continues, refines and builds on the excellent work of our previous Accessibility Action Plan 2019 to 2022.

We are proud of our achievements to date, including leading Getting to work: the Victorian public sector disability employment action plan 2018 to 2025, improving our physical work environment, carrying out a Dignified Access Review, including disability awareness in employee inductions, ensuring accessible communications content and supporting flexible work arrangements. We are committed to continuing to make tangible, measurable improvements.

It's essential that the VPSC is a role model and walks the talk when it comes to accessibility, eliminating discrimination and attracting and retaining talented employees from all abilities and backgrounds to help us deliver the best advice, policies, and programs. It's central to what we do and embedded in our public sector values particularly, Respect, Accountability, Leadership and Human Rights.

We're grateful to everyone who contributed to this plan. Working together is how we achieve positive change.

Defining disability and understanding lived experience

Defining disability and understanding the lived and living experience of our workforce.

Defining disability

The Victorian Public Sector Commission (VPSC) recognises the definition of disability as:

Persons with disabilities include those who have long-term (lasting 6 months or more) physical, mental health, intellectual, neurological, or sensory impairments which in interaction with various attitudinal and environmental barriers may hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others.

This definition is based on descriptions recognised by the United Nations Convention on the Rights of People with Disability (UNCRPD) and Australian government. This 'Convention' defines disability within the context of the social model of disability, which recognises that negative attitudes and environmental barriers impact on people's ability to participate equitably in work and life. The Convention contains principles of human rights and capability building so that persons with disabilities have agency to contribute to social and public life.

The Victorian Government also acknowledges and values the social model of disability.

The VPSC Accessibility Action Plan is underpinned by this shared understanding of the social model of disability – to remove barriers to the workplace. This is consistent with the values we hold as a sector. We respect the human rights of people with disability.

Understanding the lived and living experience of our workforce

Providing a workplace with dignified and universal access for our employees is a priority for us. We aim to ensure that every aspect of our physical and operational environment works together seamlessly to deliver an equitable experience for everyone.

VPSC is committed to being an employer that is genuinely accessible and inclusive. We want employees with lived or living experience of disability to fully engage in social and working life at the VPSC.

To provide everyone access to our physical work environment, we need to understand the experiences of people with disability. This includes people with permanent, temporary or situational sensory, cognitive or other conditions.

We provide ways for employees to raise concerns and suggest improvements to our policies, frameworks and systems. This includes those with accessibility criteria and insights from the People Matter Survey and other pulse survey results. All feedback and insights were used to inform the actions in this plan.

To ensure continuous improvement and accountability, the VPSC will regularly review its access and inclusion activities. We will address any barriers that impact our employee's ability to access the support they need in the workplace.

To demonstrate our commitment to access and inclusion, we'll:

- report on the implementation of our plan in our annual report
- publish our plan on our website
- lodge a copy of the plan with the Australian Human Rights Commission.
